LAPWAI JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH stands as the culmination of 140 years of education in the Lapwai Valley--since the first schooling was begun at the Spalding Mission. It is the first integrated school of its kind in the U.S. and the first rural high school in Idaho. Indian children attended the government boarding schools; first at Spalding, then at Fort Lapwai. White children, (and some Indian children) attended an early one-room school on the riverbank at Spalding; a one room conscription school in Lapwai, back of the present city hall; then District 57's two-room building. Patrons of the district, school board members, tribal members and representatives of the Dept. of Indian Affairs met in the spring of 1909 to plan integration. A law permitting consolidation of elementary school districts to form a high school district was passed in the state and an election of July 31, 1909 approved (90-1) the formation of such a district. White and Indian children shared their facilities and in 1912 moved together to the new brick building.

Power!

Coach Jeff Wilson said that this had to be one of the most satisfying seasons he has ever had. After having a championship team last year a lot of people did not think that we would be as strong as we were. The 'Cats ended the season with the Idaho A-P poll number 1 ranking in A-3 schools when they beat the Homedale Trojans 14-7 in the battle of cross-state football.

In finally being able to play Homedale (which is what Lapwai has been trying to do for quite some time) Coach Wilson said that we were able to show the relative strength between the North and the South.

The 'Cats ended their season with an 8-2 record and third in the CIL. But both losses were so close that they could have gone either way.

Dedication

Mr. Alan Syron

We, the class of 1976, are proud to dedicate our collection of memories and good times to a man who has been a personal friend and helper to us for the past three years as our advisor and teacher. This person is Mr. Alan Syron, science instructor, advisor, and comrade to all.

Mr. Syron, who has taught at Lapwai since the 1972-73 school year, has really been someone special to us. For the three years as our advisor, he has worked with us on every single activity our class has participated in. He never shirked his duties for our class, and he was always there when we needed him.

Thanks, Mr. Syron, for everything. We'll always remember you with a lot of respect.

Once the center of the bygone settlement of Webb, the Old Webb Store's porch drew the Junior High FHAers. Owned now by Mr. and Mrs. Jess Harvey, its rustic appearance reminds one of the "Good Old Days".

Comedy Cracks 'Em Up

Seven weeks before opening night, "Quit Your Kidding" was a rather bland, ordinary, yawn-inspiring farce-comedy in which a boy dressed like a girl to earn a small fortune. Given that basic situation, the Class of '77 met the challenge and brought to life well-developed characters and a few memorable lines. Cha Domebo's portrayal of the maid inviting everyone to "Come in!" and Kay Ashley's "Aunt Sophonia" were only a couple of the funny and memorable results of the class' first dramatic effort.

YESTERDAY

This year the annual staff decided to focus on our own interesting history in the Lapwai Valley by recounting a brief history of our school and community and by photographing our clubs at historical sites. We hope you enjoy these glimpses into Lapwai's colorful past as you review the activities of 1975-76 and we are confident that you will treasure this 1976 annual in the years to come.

Lewis P. Briggs Store Spalding Idaho

A number of people helped us by loaning pictures to us for copying for this annual. We wish to thank: The Nez Perce Historical Park Service, Fran Rader, Lewiston, Bertha Lillie, Lapwai, Arlie Parkins, Marsing, Allen Slickpoo, Kamiah.

We also thank those who shared some of their pictures taken at this year's events: Curt Wilson, Clarkston; The Lewiston Morning Tribune; Vee Davenport, Nampa; Carl Johnson, Lewiston; Larry Boyer, Lapwai; Carol Wilson, Lapwai; and the photographers of the annual staff who did such a wonderful job--Cory Auverson, Danny Kane, Joan Blewett, Wanetta Hoskins, Yvonne Cook.

Little remains to-day of the stores that once lined Lapwai's Main St. With the building of the bridge at Spalding and the highway to Lewiston people took their business elsewhere.

Lapwai in the early days was a busy town with many stores and lots of activity. In the background of the top picture is a Nez Perce encampment. A July 4th celebration brought out the band and Indians for the parade.

LAPWAI JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH stands as the culmination of 140 years of education in the Lapwai Valley--since the first schooling was begun at the Spalding Mission. It is the first integrated school of its kind in the U.S. and the first rural high school in Idaho. Indian children attended the government boarding schools; first at Spalding, then at Fort Lapwai. White children, (and some Indian children) attended an early one-room school on the riverbank at Spalding; a one room conscription school in Lapwai, back of the present city hall; then District 57's two-room building. Patrons of the district, school board members, tribal members and representatives of the Dept. of Indian Affairs met in the spring of 1909 to plan integration. A law permitting consolidation of elementary school districts to form a high school district was passed in the state and an election of July 31, 1909 approved (90-1) the formation of such a district. White and Indian children shared their facilities and in 1912 moved together to the new brick building.
